This workshop series aims to promote the development of authentic, learner-centered activities aided by practical educational technologies.

These 45-minute sessions focus on select methods, tools, and case studies to help faculty seeking to develop or revise learning activities to meet the needs of a knowledge-based, digital society. Topics may vary from to session to session depending on availability of guest speakers. Sample topics include: Flipped classroom techniques, student whiteboards using tablets, survey tools, webcast solutions, student created videos, fieldwork with mobile devices, etc.
